

The future of music through an international kaleidoscope

Bonn, 2nd May 2007 – Intellectual property, music education, digitalisation, musical diversity: these were some of the issues raised during the Annual Conference of the European Music Council, regional group of the International Music Council.

From 19 to 21, more than 100 representatives of diverse international music organisations from more than 30 European countries, Australia and Brasil came to Barcelona to exchange their vision on the music life of the XXI century. Workshops held by experts gave practical tools, on online distribution, lobbying work for culture and authors' rights issues and press work.

The Museum of the History of Catalonia provided an appealing frame for this event, organised by the European Music Council in collaboration with Europa Cantat – European Federation of Young Choirs, its regional group the Moviment Coral Català and the Catalan Music Council.

If you wish to receive the documentation of the conference, please contact the Secretariat of the European Music Council.
